Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 23 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Fine and dry for most, with sunny spells.

Today:
After a bright, chilly start, a little patchy cloud will bubble up from late morning. Staying largely dry, however, with plenty of sunny spells. Thicker cloud will fringe western coasts throughout, possibly bringing patchy light rain or drizzle. Feeling warmer. Maximum temperature 21 deg C (70 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloud, and a little light rain or drizzle, will encroach further into western areas going overnight. Eastern areas seeing largely clear skies throughout, feeling chilly here. Minimum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Thursday:
Cloud continues to spill in from the west through the morning, reaching eastern areas by midday, with patchy light rain or drizzle still possible. Feeling cool under the cloud. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Unsettled conditions throughout, with some dry and bright spells across the region. Outbreaks of rain and showers, some heavy and possibly thundery, are likely, however. Feeling warm and humid.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.